

minute speech. Rex would want to be in the middle of partisan debate and elevated discussions concerning the issues we face as Americans. Rex will now be recorded forever in congressional history.

Our debates, our philosophies are important to our democracy. But it is the idealism of young people like Rex that will always guarantee its future. We are grateful he came our way.

HOW ABOUT A FEW JOBS IN AMERICA?

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, the Department of Labor continues to amaze me with these new job listings. Check this out: Box bender ball warper, fish smoker, top screw nut roaster, impregnator, worm picker blank maker, hooker laster. Does that mean there is a hooker quicker job? If that is not enough to file your chapter 7, how about a slime plant operator helper? How about a wax ball knockout worker?

Unbelievable, Mr. Speaker, when American workers become box bending, ball warping, nut roasting top screws, it is evident everybody is getting their fish smoked. How about a few jobs in America? Eight million jobs. What do they pay, Mr. Speaker? Five dollars an hour? I yield back the balance of these jobs.

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS HAS IT BACKWARD: FOR PRESIDENT CLINTON, ACTIONS ARE WORDS, AS EVIDENCED BY HIS VETOES

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, in the current issue of Time magazine, we have a very interesting quote from George Stephanopoulos, one of Bill Clinton's top aides. He says, "For this President, words are actions."

Well, let's examine the record. Here are some interesting words from one of Bill Clinton's campaign commercials: "I've offered a plan to get the economy moving again, starting with a middle-class tax cut." Or, how about these words: "I would present a 5-year plan to balance the budget." And let's not forget these words, again, from the President: "I have a plan * * * to end welfare as we know it."

Mr. Speaker, considering the fact that Bill Clinton has vetoed all of these promises, I'm left wondering, What is George Stephanopoulos talking about?

The record is clear. There is no similarity between what Bill Clinton says and what he does.

Obviously, Mr. Stephanopoulos got it backward: For this President actions are words, because his vetoes speak volumes about protecting Washington's values.

EARTH DAY

(Ms. MCKINNEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, Earth Day will soon be upon us, and under instructions from the Republican National Committee, members from the other side of the aisle will be planting trees in an effort to clean up their well-deserved antienvironmental image. The American people know, however, that the only thing green about the Republican Party is the color of the campaign dollars they receive from big-name polluters.

It is no coincidence, Mr. Speaker, that the Republican majority is still trying to pass legislation to allow oil and gas drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska. GOP coffers have been pumped full of money from the oil and gas industries.

You see, the process is simple: Pump greenbacks into Republican coffers, then pump oil and gas out of fragile ecosystems.

So this coming Earth Day when you see your Republican Member of Congress planting a tree, just think of how scenic the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge will be with oil wells dotting the landscape.

WE MUST PROTECT WORKING CLASS AMERICANS FROM ROBBERY BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT EVERY APRIL 15

(Mr. SCARBOROUGH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I like trees. I think it is a good idea that we plant more trees. But let us talk about something serious and get beyond partisan bickering. Let us talk about what happened yesterday with the tax vote.

We continue to hear that we are providing tax cuts for the rich, but I have to tell the Members, when I hold my town hall meetings, and I have held 75 over the past year, it is not people making six figures asking for tax cuts, it is working class Americans making $30,000 or less who see every 2 weeks when they are working at Wendy's and they are working at Wal-Mart and they are carrying two or three jobs, that the Federal Government is taking more and more and more of their money.

We have to do something to protect those working class Americans who continue to get robbed by the Federal Government every April 15 and every 2 weeks. That is why I was proud to vote the way I did, and that is why I was disappointed to hear the rhetoric about all these people who are so darned interested in union workers and the working class Americans who will not do what they want them to do, and that is to give them back more of their money so they can invest in their future, their children's education, and put a little bit of money to the side.

CALLING FOR RESTORATION OF SUMMER JOBS PROGRAMS FOR 615,000 DESERVING STUDENTS

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I could not help but hear my good friend, the gentleman from Florida, talk about jobs. I just wonder how many of the Republicans are supporting the increase in minimum wage that so many Americans need.

Now there are approximately 53 days left until schools in Houston and across the Nation recess for summer vacation. There will be a crisis of out-of-work young people if this Congress does not restore the Job Training Partnership Act funds for summer youth employment.

The extremist forces in the House have smeared the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King in the month of his death, as he fought for the opportunities for underprivileged young people to find summer work, by eliminating these funds altogether. Eliminated were $867 million in nationwide funding, $9.1 million from my hometown in Houston, TX, alone; in all, leaving some 615,000 underprivileged young people across America without summer jobs that they depend on to support their families and return to school. Fortunately, the Senate has restored most of the funding for this vital program. However, the uncertainty that this program faces due to temporary spending measure after temporary spending measure leaves us in jeopardy.

Mr. Speaker, I simply ask, in 53 days, let us stand for the young people of America. Let us restore the jobs, the 6,000 jobs in Houston, and the $9.1 million.

MINIMUM WAGE INCREASE IS NOT A PANACEA

(Mrs. SEASTRAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, somehow liberals in this House and the big labor union bosses here in Washington, DC, are convinced that raising the minimum wage will somehow solve the world's problems. The belief in the effectiveness of the minimum wage is a triumph of fantasy over reality, of symbolism over substance.

The proponents of an increased minimum wage argue that Americans need a raise. Well, if Members recall, Mr. Speaker, Republicans tried to give working Americans a raise by giving them a tax cut, and the President said no and vetoed it. Now liberals are falling, and, I might say, those big labor union bosses are falling all over themselves trying to portray themselves as
